RULES FOR PRONUNCIATION AND ORTHOGRAPHY.

PRONUNCIATION.

In order that this work may be conveniently used as a Pronouncing Dictionary, the words are divided into syllables with an accent over that on which the stress is laid; many of them are re-spelled wholly or in part, and a system of notation is employed, so simple, as to be easily understood.

EXAMPLES

The accented syllable of words is determined by this mark (')

When the mark of accent immediately follows a vowel, that vowel has its first or long sound, as in fátal, glóry, de-fy

The long sound of the vowels is designated also by a horizontal mark placed over them; as in áccident, sér-éne, wíse

The second, or short sound of the vowels, in accented syllables, is designated by the omission of any mark; as sal-a-ry, en-er-gy, sym-bol

The Italian sound of a is designated by two points over the letter; as in bárra, fáther.

The broad sound of a is designated by two points under the vowel, as in háll, bróad.

The short sound of broad a is designated by a single mark under it, as in whást, gárrá-ant

The letter e, having the sound of a long, has a horizontal mark under the letter; as in grá-y, in-veigh

The letter i, when it has the sound of a short, has a curving mark over it; as in bírd, sígn

When the letter i has the sound of a long, it has two points over it; as in tí-guís, bárrá-ne

The letter o, when it has the sound of a short, has a curving mark over it; as in dóve, són

The vowel o, when it has the sound of eo, has two dots over it; thus, móve, lóse.

The two letters oo, without points, have the sound of the French ou; as in fóc, bóom.

The sound of oo, when shortened, is indicated by a point under each letter; thus, bóok, lóok

The short sound of oo is also indicated by two points under the letter u; as in fúll, púll

In all cases when one vowel or a digraph is marked, that vowel has the sound designated by the mark, and the other is quiescent; thus, appéar, veín, bróad.

The letter c, when it has the sound of a is marked as in cárr.

The soft sound of g is distinguished thus as in génn, from the hard sound, as in gó.

The letter s, when it has the vocal sound, is marked thus, as in práise, to distinguish it from the merely sibilant sound, as in sígn

The letters sh, in words from the French, are pronounced as sh, and marked thus, shákes, pronounced sháve.

The vocal sound of th is distinguished thus, as in thou, from the aspirated sound of th, as in think.

The letter a, when final, has the Italian sound, as in la'ta.

P is mute before s, as in psalms, and before t, as in psylism.

The letter u, it should be remembered, has the sound of yu in most words in which this letter forms a syllable by itself, as in u-nit, u-nanimous, u-biquity, u-surp. and in some monosyllables, as u-see, pronounced yuse, and marked thus, u.

Letters in the Italic character are silent.

The present practice is to give u the sound of yu, in such words as nature, feature, rapture, which are pronounced nat'yur, feat'yur, rapt'yur. This practice seems to have been adopted to avoid the common corruption of a change of t into sh, as in nashur, a pronunciation condemned by some of the latest orthoepists.

Two accents between u and g indicate that ug are pronounced with a close articulation, as in fin'ger.

When both the single (') and the double accent (") occur in the same word, the former is to be considered the primary, and the latter the secondary accent, as in cheese'men'ger, quad ran'gle.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

The general rule observed in settling the orthography of certain classes of words in this work is uniformity in words of like formation, that is, a rule without an exception.

EXAMPLES.

1. Eura words as favor, labor, &c. formerly ending in our, drop the u.

2. Yuric, palis, cubic, and all similar words from the Greek and Latin, and some formed in analogy with them, without k. Most of these admit the terminations al and al'y, as musical, musically, and it is inconvenient to add k to the primitive word musica, and be obliged to omit it in musical.

The k is retained, however, in a few derivatives, as in cuckey, mimicking, &c. to prevent an erroneous pronunciation.

Words of Teutonic and Gothic origin, having never lost k; and not admitting an additional syllable, retain k, as hemlock, fetlock, weelock. Monosyllables are also excepted, as sick, lick, lick, most of which may be used as verbs.

3. Defensae, agenses, offensae, pretenses, recompenses, with s, not solely because the Latin originals have s, but because the derivatives defensive, agressive, offensive, pretension, recompensing, must be written with s.

4. Blamable, abatable, debatable, movable, salable, reconcilable, and all similar words without s, except after c and g, as noticable, changeable.

5. Bafoll, miscall, install, recall, forestall, embarral, retain the ll, for if one l is omitted in the primitive word, it must be restored in the participles defalling, &c., and it is a general rule in the language that a before ll has the broad sound (will and shall excepted) Hence, if written befal, miscal, the pronunciation may be easily mistaken. For this reason, ll should be retained in the nouns installment, unhullment.

6. Such words as conic, meter, &c. have the e changed into er. Hundreds of words like diameter, culer, have already undergone this change, which is now extended to about twenty more, to complete the analogy. Aera, massacre, and chambre, are excepted, to avoid an erroneous pronunciation.

7. Forcell, distill, instill, fulfill, retain ll in the primitive, for it must be retained in the participles and other derivatives, as forcelling, distilling, &c. In this case, the pupil has only to learn that the spelling of the original words tell, still, fill, is retained in all the derivatives.

8. Connection, deflection, infection, reflection, follow the spelling of the verbs connect, deflect, infect, reflect.

9. Verbs from the Greek geo, and others formed in analogy with them, are written with the termination ise, as generalise, legalise, moralise. Cathexise and excorise are exceptions. Words directly from the h rence

GREEK AND LATIN PROPER NAMES.

When a word is succeeded by a word printed in Italics, the latter word is merely to spell the former as it ought to be pronounced. Thus AK'she-a is the true pronunciation of the preceding word Ac'ci-a; and so of the rest.

When the letters Eng. are put after a word, it is to show that this word is the preceding word Anglicised. Thus, Vulcan, Eng., is the Latin word Vulcanus, changed into the English Vulcan.

Every a ending a syllable, with the accent upon it, is pronounced like the a in the English words fa-vor, tu-per, &c.

Every unaccented a, whether initial, medial, or final, ending a syllable, has an obscure sound, bordering on the a in father.

SCRIPTURE PROPER NAMES.

When a word is succeeded by a word printed in italics, this latter word is merely to spell the former as it ought to be pronounced. Thus, A-ku'o-fel is the true pronunciation of the preceding word A-chi'o-phel: and so of the rest.
